Targets Obscured by Haze and Team Average Drops Accordingly-Showing Big Improvement

Although some of the individual scores made this morning by the state rifle squad at Fort Douglas are the highest scores since the practise commenced last Sunday, the team average is lower than usual, some of the men failing rather low. The shooting commenced early this morning with rapid fire at 200 yards, when the marksmanship was the poorest far. Following the rapid fire the boys commenced the 200 yard range and found elevations for the skirmish fire, the 200 yard range and found elevations for the skirmish fire, at the various ranges.

The conditions early in the morning were bad owing to the smoke which was hanging low down on the hills and partly covering the targets. This partly accounts for the poor shooting at rapid fire. The targets were hazy at the middle ranges on the skirmish work and when the 600 yard range was reached, where the peep sights are used, the targets could not be seen at all. Coach Walthall ordered the boys back to the 200 yard range where the rapid fire work was again held. A slight wind arose on the way from the 600 yard line and partly cleared away the mist which greatly aided in the making of higher scores. The work this time on the targets was up to the standard, there being but three scores below the 40 mark. This pulled up the average over 43 which is exceedingly good for the rapid firing. Every man is steadily improving at this work and before the national match, the team promises to average over 45, which is 30 per cent. If the boys can shoot like this at Perry the state will certainly secure a good lead on some of the teams in class C, which will without a doubt fall down on rapid fire. The past few days the targets have been remaining up about two seconds too long but the time was exact this remaining up about two seconds too long but the time was exact this morning, which makes the score much

The smoke having partly cleared away, the team commenced a skirmish fire but the sky was bad for clear aiming, and even though the men held well the shots went wild, which pulled down the scores. Most of the men shot consistently but their hits were off the flaure and the four space below it. the figure and the four space below it The conditions were such as delayed the game slightly and as a result the boys did not get in as much practise as usual. Only one run was made, which disappointed a number as they were positive of raising their score on the second attempt. The average was in the 50's.

ANDERSON'S PERFECT SCORE. Sergeant Anderson of Salt Lake again comes into the lime light by his shooting this morning. He made high scores on both rapid fire and the skirmish run. At rapid fire he made a possible, which is 50, shooting two strings of 25. Coming second was Sergeant Frank Smith of Ogden, who shot 48. Smith shot nine consecutive buil's eyes and fell down on the last shot, making a 3. Sergeant Floyd Smith shot 46, while Lieutenant Winch and Sergeant Warthman tied with 45. Sergeant Anderson's best work was in the skirmish, and although he did not make a possible, his score Sergeant Anderson of Salt Lake again work was in the skirmish, and although he did not make a possible, his score is more valuable than the 50 at rapid fire. He pulled down the high score for the skirmish fire not only today, but since the shooting commenced, maksidered remarkable. Sergeant Frank sidered remarkable. Sergeant Frank Smith had a lucky day, coming second in the skirmish as well as rapid fire. Smith also made a good score, it being $2. Lieut. Collidge shot third, making 70. The team average was slightly lower than Wednesday.

Private Amundsen who held high gun yesterday afternoon fell down a few points this morning. He is shooting well against odds. He is a "southpaw" and although it is natural to use his left eye, it is exceedingly hard to manipulate the bolt, both on rapid fire and the skirmish, as the bolt is fire and the skirmish, as the bolt is on the right side of the rifle and he uses his left hand. Considerable time is taken up, which must be overcome is taken up, which must be overcome by rapid sighting. Corporal Merrill, who has been rather nervous the past few days, is be-ginning to settle down and with a little attention will surprise the men who are attention will surprise the men who are shooting only a few points to his good. Merrill has not been shooting sensational scores, but is shooting consistently and Coach Walthall stated that a consistent shooter is what counts on a competition.

DR. I. J. MORGAN GIVES AN ARTISTIC RECITAL

Director of Music of the University of Pennsylvania at the Tabernack Today Noon.

One of the most interesting and artistic organ recitals ever given in the tabernacle was the one of this noon, performed by Irvin J. Morgan, Musc. Doc., director of music of the University of Pennsylvania, and organist of Trinity church, Pittsburg, Pa. The program was entirely of the artist's own composition, in which he showed talent of an unusually high order, and not merely from a technician's standpoint, but from a point of a musical temperament, as well as soulful interpretation. One fact was much in evidence, viz., that the performer is a master of harmony, counterpoint and thorough bass. In fact, it is a well known principle in the profession that no one can justly expect to achieve distinction, reach the higher planes of the art who is not well based in harmony and counterpoint, for this is the parent of true harmonic construction into which melody can be interwoven with such often beautiful effect. The spirit of Dr. Morgan's playing was at once manifest as specially adapted to religious performance, and even his grand festal march composed for concert organ, was deeply tinged with it. A particularly attractive feature of the recital was four variations on "Annie Laurie," richly wreated in delicate arpeggios of varied registration that made the listeners oblivious to all other things—forgetful of the monotonous complaces of pretation. One fact was much in eviers oblivious to all other things—for-getful of the monotonous complaces of life. The harmony and counterpoint elaborations in these variations were rich and beautiful. rich and beautiful. Dr. Morgan's adaption of the Beethoven Scherzo was an admirable piece of work, the effort of genuine musicianship; while the "Meditation," "Amen," and "Response of Angels" from the Chorale were compositions of the highest order.

The galleries were packed with an immense audience that enjoyed every number, and broke the rule against applause at the close of the recital. A slip of the organist's finger half opened the "great separation" piston, during one number, throwing half the organ open, which brought him to a stop until Prof. McCiellan came up from the house to readjust the mefrom the house to readjust the mechanism.
